LOCAL CLIENT & POSITIONING GUIDE

Couples Private Transportation

Your goal is not to look like a giant transportation company. Your advantage is that two people can combine their strengths, schedules, relationships, and networks to create a local business customers can book directly.

Inside this guide

- How to position a couples transportation business
- Who to target first
- Where to market locally
- How to introduce your business as a team
- How to build referral relationships
- How to divide the work around your strengths
- Ready to use outreach messages
- A simple 30 day launch plan

Keep it simple. Be visible. Be dependable. Build together.

Two people. Two sets of strengths. One business.

1. POSITION YOUR BUSINESS

Your positioning answers one question: Why should someone choose you instead of opening an app?

For a couples transportation business, the strongest answer is not lower price. It is local ownership, direct communication, dependable service, and the ability to build the business around two people working as a team.

Your core message

Private transportation from a local couple you can book directly.

What you want people to remember

- You are local and easy to reach
- Customers book directly with your business
- Two people can create more schedule coverage and flexibility
- You provide personal, dependable service
- You are building repeat clients and referrals, not anonymous one time rides
- Your business is designed around your life and goals

Do not try to sound like a national company. Your relationship with the customer is the advantage.

2. WHO TO TARGET FIRST

Start with people who already have a reason to value familiarity, convenience, and direct communication.

Best first client groups

- Airport travelers in your personal and professional networks
- Busy couples and families
- Business travelers
- Snowbirds and seasonal residents
- Older adults who prefer a familiar local business
- Parents coordinating transportation for family members
- Friends, neighbors, church contacts, coworkers, and former clients
- People attending local events, dinners, meetings, and appointments

Use both networks

One of the biggest advantages of building as a couple is that you begin with two circles of relationships. Your friends plus their friends, your coworkers plus their coworkers, and both sides of the family can become the starting point for your business.

Two networks can create twice as many starting conversations.

3. WHERE TO MARKET LOCALLY

The best early marketing is usually where trust already exists.

Start here

- Neighborhood Facebook groups
- Nextdoor
- Both personal Facebook pages
- Community and neighborhood groups
- Church and social networks where appropriate
- Local businesses and professional contacts
- Real estate agents and travel agents
- Senior communities
- Hotels and vacation rental contacts
- Medical and wellness offices
- Clubs, sports groups, hobby groups, and civic organizations

Your weekly visibility rule

Post consistently enough that people in both of your networks begin to recognize the business before they need a ride. The goal is familiarity. Familiarity creates trust, and trust creates direct bookings.

4. HOW TO INTRODUCE YOUR BUSINESS

Keep the introduction simple. People need to understand what you do and why working as a couple makes the business stronger.

Simple introduction

We started a local private transportation business that people can book directly. We are building it together around our schedules, our strengths, and the relationships we already have in the community. We provide airport transportation, appointments, and other local travel.

Short social post

We are excited to share that we have started our own private transportation business. If you need an airport ride or other local transportation, you can book directly with us. We would love the opportunity to take great care of you, your family, or your friends.

In person version

We built a private transportation business together. Customers can book directly with us, and because there are two of us, we can divide the work around our schedules and strengths.

5. BUILD REFERRAL RELATIONSHIPS

A strong referral partner does not need transportation every week. They simply need to know people who do.

Good referral partners

- Travel agents
- Real estate agents
- Vacation rental hosts
- Hotel and concierge contacts
- Medical offices
- Senior community staff
- Wedding and event professionals
- Local business owners
- Salons and personal service businesses
- People with large personal or professional networks

Referral introduction

We own a local private transportation business and are building relationships with businesses whose clients sometimes need dependable transportation. If one of your customers ever needs an airport ride or local transportation, we would be happy to take great care of them. We are also glad to refer people back to your business whenever we can.

6. DIVIDE THE WORK AROUND YOUR STRENGTHS

You do not have to split every task fifty fifty. The advantage is deciding together how the business should work.

Common ways couples divide the work

- Both drive and create more availability
- One drives while the other handles bookings and customer communication
- One focuses on marketing and social media while the other manages operations
- Work different schedules to create broader coverage
- Share referral outreach and local networking
- One handles technology while the other focuses on customer relationships

The goal is not equal tasks. The goal is a strong team.

Use the strengths, schedule, and personality each person already brings.
Build the business around your life instead of forcing your life around the business.

7. READY TO USE OUTREACH MESSAGES

Friend or neighbor

We wanted to let you know that we have started a private transportation business. If you ever need an airport ride, appointment transportation, or another local trip, you can book directly with us. And if you know someone who needs dependable transportation, we would appreciate you sharing our information.

Local business

Hi, we own a local private transportation business and are introducing ourselves to a few businesses in the community. If one of your clients ever needs dependable airport or local transportation, we would be happy to help. We are also always happy to support and refer local businesses.

Past contact

We wanted to reconnect and let you know that we now provide private transportation locally. If you ever need an airport ride or know someone who does, we would love the opportunity to help. Please save our information for the next time transportation comes up.

Referral ask after a great ride

Thank you again for riding with us. If you know a friend, neighbor, or family member who would appreciate the same personal service, we would be grateful if you shared our information with them.

8. YOUR FIRST 30 DAYS

The goal of the first month is not to become famous. It is to become known by enough people that the first referral chain begins.

Week 1

- Announce the business to both personal networks
- Post on both personal social media pages
- Join relevant neighborhood and local groups
- Identify ten potential referral partners together

Week 2

- Introduce yourselves to five referral partners
- Post two or three customer focused social posts
- Follow up with people who showed interest
- Ask every satisfied customer for a review

Week 3

- Reconnect with another group of personal contacts
- Visit or message five more referral partners
- Share a helpful transportation or travel post
- Ask satisfied customers for referrals

Week 4

- Review which messages and groups produced conversations
- Repeat what worked
- Stop spending time where there was no response
- Stay visible and keep following up

One good customer can become a repeat customer, a review, and several referrals.

FINAL REMINDER

Build customers who know you, trust you, book you directly, and recommend you.

Two people. Two sets of strengths. One business.
